

Greenwich Hospital Update - October 2025

We're pleased to share an update on the Greenwich Hospital redevelopment and the exciting progress we're making to deliver a new integrated healthcare campus for the Northern Sydney community.

A Centre of Excellence for complex care

The new Greenwich health campus will be HammondCare's flagship location, a place where world-class care and innovation come together. It will be a Centre of Excellence for the complex care of older people, bringing together services like palliative care, dementia care, older person's mental health, restorative care, and seniors living. It will also be home to Hammond Innovations, our Hub for research and learning.

This is a once-in-a-generation investment in health and aged care, designed to meet the changing needs of our community and support people to live well.

Refining the final design

We've submitted an application to Department of Planning, Housing and Infrastructure for some positive changes to the existing Greenwich Hospital Development Approval (SSDA). These proposed modifications will consolidate building stages, meaning a shorter construction time that helps us deliver services sooner and more efficiently, with less disruption to the neighbourhood.

The updated proposal keeps the approved building envelope and floor area, while introducing improvements for buildability and reducing construction impacts, without compromising our commitment to deliver quality and innovation.

These changes reflect HammondCare's commitment to thoughtful design and better outcomes for residents, families, and the wider community.

Stage 1 progressing well

Stage 1 of the redevelopment is well underway and on track for completion in early 2026. This phase includes essential infrastructure upgrades such as power, water, and communications, as well as improvements to the car park and nursery area. Several zones will be handed over by October, helping reduce disruption and improve access.

Caring for the community

With Stage 1 nearing completion, we'll soon begin construction of the new health campus. During this phase, all existing healthcare services will temporarily relocate to nearby, fit-for-purpose accommodation to ensure continuity of care for patients and families.

All relocation sites are close to Greenwich Hospital, ensuring that care remains accessible and uninterrupted during construction.

Staying connected

We'll keep you informed as we progress through the next stages. While these changes are being submitted to Department of Planning, Housing and Infrastructure in October, we remain committed to transparency and community engagement.
